

High Uinta Chapter Trails Day Project and Campout

The High Uinta chapter here in Kamas celebrated National Trails Day June 5th with a fun work project in the Uintas. We camped out at the horse campground in Pine Valley and worked alongside Forest Service employees on trail clearing.

Three of our members are certified to cut

Yellow Pine up as far as they could go before running into snow with the help of Mike, Amy, and Mali from the Forest Service. Tom White cleared Shingle Creek up as far as he could go with the help of Ben and Kevin from the Forest Service. They were stopped by the swollen creek which was unsafe to cross. Dick and Deb Walter and Ron and Kathy Jensen cleared the North Fork of the Provo as far as they could go before running into the impassable creek. We also cleared the short trail that runs south of the campground to other connecting trails.

The spring runoff was pretty intense. We couldn't cross the Provo, North Fork of the Provo, or Shingle Creek. As a result, our clearing efforts had to remain on the near side of those rivers.

Saturday night we had a potluck and barbecue with burgers provided by our chapter. It was a fun time for everyone.

downed trees with chain saws, and they really made this clearing project successful.
